PREFACE

This is a comprehensive bibliography of the Chicago experience, with a particular focus on Black people in that context. It is of necessity a work in progress, and is meant to be a research tool. We have been greatly aided by the work of the Chicago Historical Society, and the great history of scholarship of Black intellectuals (e.g. St. Claire Drake, Monroe Work, and Ralph Bunche) and others (e.g. Allan Spear, Milton Rakove, and Richard Wade). The main thing that we want to emphasize is that this is a foundation for our ongoing research on the Black experience in Chicago, and we are making it available for other scholars and students as well.

We plan to publish a textbook for advanced secondary students and college students on the Black experience of Chicago. This type of curriculum oriented project is based on having a going process of monitoring all relevant literature about that experience. We hope that all of the users of this bibliography will send in their corrections, and additions so that we can prepare a second edition of this in one year's time.

Finally, this project is a collective product. We have many years of previous research by several scholars to build on and several staff members of the Afro-American Studies and Research Program, University of Illinois whose contribution have enabled this volume to be produced. This is a team effort of the highest order.
